PSC cancels Seashore permit

BY MARY G. SEILEY
The state Public Service Commission has canceled most of Seashore Utilities' permit to provide water and gas services in Bay St. Louis.

In an order issued last week, the PSC let Seashore retain its certificate to operate only in the Hancock Heights Subdivision, comprised of Jackson, Corinth, Arcola and Pine streets. City officials expect to continue providing water services to that area, although it's unclear what arrangements will be made between the municipality and the utility concerning that service.

Until last week's ruling, the utility held a "certificate of public convenience and necessity" covering 509 acres of lands now within the city limits.

In October, the city petitioned the PSC to cancel that certificate on the grounds that utility has never provided water or gas services in the area.

While Seashore's certificate covered a vast area, generally bounded by Felicita Street, Casino Magic's acreage and Joe's Bayou, the only utility lines the company actually owns in that area amount to a few water and gas lines in Hancock Heights.

The city has provided water service to Hancock Heights using Seashore's lines, but gas service has never been provided. The subdivision, in fact, is all-electric.

The PSC noted in its ruling that the city leased Seashore water lines in Hancock Heights until 1985, maintaining and operating that water system. There were no leases concerning service in the rest of Seashore's certificated area -- the utility doesn't have any lines in place outside of Hancock Heights.

Seashore does not know the number of customers, the customer names and addresses, or the amount of revenue and expenses associated with operating the water system," in Hancock Heights, the PSC ruling states. "Testimony established that the customers don't even know that Seashore exists and that they always look to the city for service."

"Seashore additionally testified that they had not earlier attempted to provide service in this area because it was not economically feasible or fair to the customer to have to pay for the cost of providing service twice."

The PSC said the certificate that was issued to Seashore included "not only a right to serve the customers, but an obligation. Testimony and facts are undisputed that at no time has Seashore actually provided water or gas service to any of its customers in its certificated area."

Despite the ruling, issues between the utility and city aren't at an end. The utility could appeal the PSC ruling, and it does not require Seashore to provide water service in Hancock Heights within any specified time.

In addition, Seashore has filed a suit against the city in Chancery Court, claiming the city has taken over its utility lines without compensation.

Undercover operation nets 18 arrests

BY ELLIS C. CUEVAS
The long July Fourth weekend began with a big bang for local law enforcement agencies.

During the wee hours of Friday, the Hancock County Criminal Justice Facility was a beehive of activity, as Drug Task Force members were putting the finishing touches on Operation Independence, a roundup of drug dealers.

By 7 a.m., some 18 suspects were arrested and charged with the sale of a controlled substance, Terry Eley, Drug Task Force Director, said.

"The arrests were made by the task force and members of the multi-force swat team. The arrests followed a two-month undercover operation," Eley added.

Officers had in their possession some 25 warrants as they dispersed from the Hancock County Criminal Justice Facility at 4 a.m.

Those arrested were charged with the sale of a controlled substance, marijuana, or crack cocaine, Eley said.

Swat team members began to return to the Criminal Justice Facility at 4:30 a.m., with from one to five subjects at a time.

To handle the increase in traffic at the jail for bookings, two jail shifts were on hand. There were also two extra dispatchers in addition to Gloria Tartavouille, telecommunications supervisor to handle the communications.

As the suspects were brought into jail, they were searched, uncuffed, placed into a holding cell before they began a lengthy process.

The process included a medical report, any special medica-

Bay improvements suggested

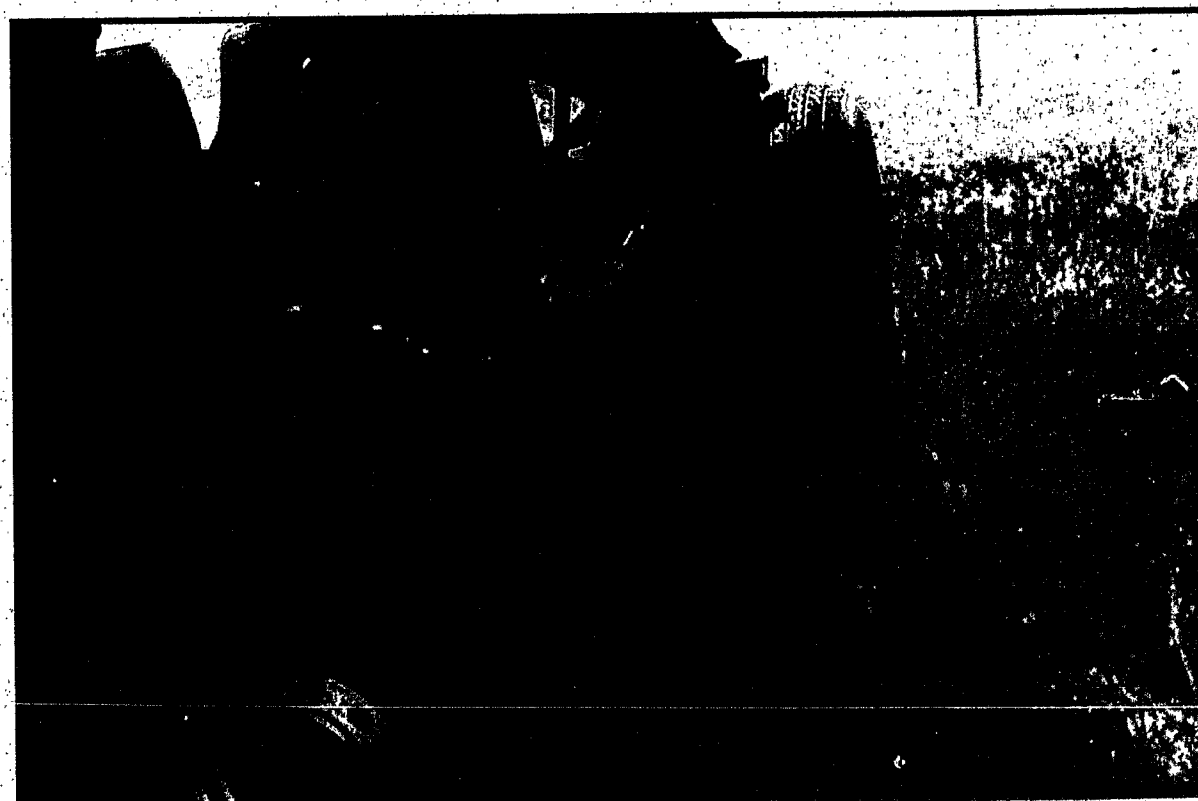

BY MARY G. SEILEY
Consultants have suggested major capital improvement projects for the city of Bay St. Louis over the next 25 years, including $1.35 million in spending during the next fiscal year.

Continental Consultants of Jackson wrote the recommendations as the final chapter in the city's proposed comprehensive development plan.

Their spending proposal suggests financing from an array of sources, including local bonds, special improvement district assessments, pay-as-you-go financing, state and federal aid, and private gifts, donations and bequests.

Short-term projects and estimated costs suggested for the coming fiscal year include: a new ladder truck for the fire department, $150,000; drainage improvements, $250,000;

Hit-and-run victim

Marilyn North was injured last Saturday when her Jeep Wrangler (above) was involved in a hit-and-run accident. The suspect, who is still at-large, was driving a yellow, late-model pickup truck. North's vehicle came to rest in a culvert west of Waveland on Highway 90. North was listed in stable condition at Hancock Medical Center Friday. The incident is under investigation by the Mississippi Highway Safety Patrol. (Echo staff photo by Ellis C. Cuevas)

Court ruling to have little effect

BY RICHARD MEEK

A Supreme Court ruling that allows for the drug testing of student athletes will probably have little effect at area public schools, officials said.

Hancock County School Superintendent Myrna Bourgeois said the county already has a testing policy in place for Hancock High School.

Bay High School Athletic Director Debbie Triplett said the Bay-Waveland School District does not have a policy, but she added one has "not been necessary" at the school.

The Hancock High School Student Handbook says that "athletes may be tested for drugs or other controlled substances during the course of the year in grades nine through 12. This is a preventive measure to insure the health and welfare of our young people."

Numbers don't always add up for emergency response time

BY MARY G. SEILEY
Hancock County Fire Marshal Richard Pate says if you don't want to twiddle your thumbs waiting for emergency help, be sure you've got your numbers right. House numbers, that is.

"I've heard nothing but complaints about response time from emergency services," Pate said Friday, including sluggish response from the Sheriff's Department, area fire departments and emergency medical services.

So, Pate decided to investigate for himself by tuning into his emergency radio scanner to listen, and going along for the ride to some of the calls.

"Ninety percent of our problems is that people do not have their address where you can find the house," said Pate. In some cases, residents have simply picked a number to put on their homes - totally out of sequence with other numbers in the block.

It's not a small problem, Pate said. "I want to express deep concern about this."

Emergency personnel get aggravated and frustrated in such circumstances, said Pate, since they are trained to respond to calls as quickly as possible. "They know minutes and seconds count to prevent injuries and keep situations from getting out of control."

Pate said residents should put large, reflective numbers on their mailboxes and homes as well. If there's confusion about what number should be posted, call Pate at 466-4709, or the Hancock County tax assessor's office.

While Pate's concerns address residences in the unincorporated area primarily, Bay St. Louis Mayor Eddie Favre said recently a push will be made soon to simplify addresses within the city.

Some streets, he said, are so similarly named that confusion is inevitable for emergency personnel. As in the county, some city residences are numbered improperly or out-of-sequence, the mayor said.

Storytelling and German Fest to highlight program

Crawfish Pie and Jambalaya is the storytelling show to be presented as this week's highlight of the Hancock County Library System's Summer Reading Program. The show, a compilation of tales of Louisiana culture, is set for Wednesday, July 5, at 10:30 a.m. at the Bay St. Louis-Hancock County Library in Bay St. Louis.

Shawn D. Jackson, a New Orleans native, will perform as Professor Folklore, an innovative and entertaining storyteller. She received a bachelor's degree in arts/communication from the University of New Orleans and is presently an ensemble member and company manager at Junebug Productions Inc., vice president of Alliance for Community Theaters Inc. and a Young Audiences artist.

Due to the overwhelming response to the programs at the Bay St. Louis-Hancock County Library, the storytelling program will be held in the main reading room of the library, while a movie will be presented in the public meeting room for younger children.

German culture, language and crafts will be presented by Karola Williams at the Waveland Library Thursday, July 6 at 10:30 a.m. A native of Germany, Williams will display German toys and pictures, and will teach the children to count and say their names in German.

To register, children should visit the Hancock County Library System branch nearest them, and then visit a branch at least four times and check out at least six books between now and July 6.

To validate each visit, each reading record must be stamped. Merit stamps will be presented for every five books read beyond the basic goal of six books.

Each participant will receive a reading record on which to record books read, and those who complete the program will receive a certificate. Books may be checked out at all three branches of the library system.

A library card is required to check out all books. Applicants must be 18 years old and have identification. A certificate and goodie bag will be presented to each participant who completes the program. Awards will be presented the week of July 11.

Final request for Bay St. Louis area host families

Foreign high school students are scheduled to arrive into the Bay St. Louis area for academic program, homestays, and the sponsoring organization needs a few more local host families.

According to Pacific Intercultural Exchange (PIE) executive director, John Doty, the students are all between the ages of 15 and 18 years, are English-speaking, have their own spending money, carry accident and health insurance, and are anxious to share their cultural experiences with their new American families. PIE currently has programs to match almost every family's needs, ranging in length from a semester to a full academic year, where the students attend local high schools.

PIE area representatives match students with host families by finding common interests and lifestyles through an informal in-home meeting. Prospective host families are able to review student applications and select the perfect match. As there are no "typical" host families, PIE can fit a student into just about any situation, whether it be a single parent, a childless couple, a retiring couple or a large family.

Families who host for PIE are also eligible to claim a $50 per month charitable contribution deduction on their itemized tax returns for each month they host a sponsored student.

PIE has students from Spain, Germany, Poland, Russia, Finland, Argentina, Brazil, Colombia, Paraguay, Australia, New Zealand, Croatia and many other countries.

Doty encourages families to contact the program immediately, as it will allow the proper time for the students and hosts to get to know one another before they actually meet for the first time.

Bay St. Louis area families interested in learning more about student exchange or arranging for a meeting with a community representative may call PIE, toll-free at 1-800-631-1818. The agency also has travel/study program opportunities available for American high school students as well as possibilities for community volunteers to assist in work with area host families, students and schools.

"CUEVAS' QUOTES"

By Ellis C. Cuevas

July Fourth means the use of fireworks to many folks.

I know that when I was younger, myself and three brothers "popped" our share of fireworks.

If I had it to do over again, I would not do so, but I guess with age, we have a tendency to change our habits.

I know there will be many in the area using fireworks, so I urge everyone to please use extreme care.

Every year I see many small children popping fireworks without any adult supervision and this is a bad practice.

Each year thousands are injured using fireworks and many of the injuries are very serious.

So, if you use fireworks, please be careful.

While on the subject of fireworks, I know of two firework displays scheduled for Hancock County.

Tonight at 9:30, there is a fireworks display scheduled at Jubilee Casino at Bayou Caddy.

Monday night, July 3, the Our Lady of the Gulf Crab Fest's fireworks display is scheduled for 9 p.m. on the Bay St. Louis beach in front of Our Lady of the Gulf Church.

Both displays should have ample space for spectators to view.

The St. Rose De Lima Catholic Church Family Fair continues through tonight on the church's grounds.

The festivities are on Necaise Avenue, Bay St. Louis.

The Our Lady of the Gulf Crab Fest continues through Tuesday, July 4th.

Both the fair and fest offer all types of good foods, games, entertainment and fun.

Don't forget the Mississippi Deep Sea Fishing Rodeo as it also continues through Tuesday.

We still have a lot of activities in our area for the extra long holiday.

No what you do, or where you go, please be careful.

I have already noticed a heavy increase in traffic for our area, especially along Interstate 10, Highway 90 and Beach Boulevard.

Some folks have a tendency to drink over the holidays, if you drink, please do not drive, let someone not drinking drive.

Many groups now have a designated driver, one who is not drinking and this is a good practice if you drink.

We just have too many alcohol related accidents in our area.

I just hope that each and everyone of you will have a safe and happy Fourth of July.

This week is the last call for those not registered to vote to do so in order to vote in the August 8 primaries.

It is very important for everyone to be able to vote and help select the leaders of our county and state for the next four years.

Over the years we have had several elections decided by only one vote.

There are several races which appear to really be up for grabs this election, and I know the results will be very close.

So, if you haven't registered as yet, go to your respective city hall, or the Hancock County Circuit Clerk's office before noon Saturday.

Make sure your vote counts on August 8.

New laws effective July 1

Several bills addressing public safety were enacted by the 1995 Legislature and will go into effect July 1.

Perhaps the most significant change concerning the Mississippi Department of Public Safety is the reduction of the blood alcohol concentration (BAC) for drivers under age 21.

"This badly needed legislation gives us the authority to get immature, drinking drivers off the road," said Public Safety Commissioner Jim Ingram.

"With this law, the drunk teenage joy rider became a relic. We now can protect other travelers and the young people who were abusing their driving privileges. Through this legislation, we can save lives."

This amendment changes the BAC from .10 percent to .08 percent for drivers under age 21. The amendment strengthens existing laws concerning driving under the influence of drugs or alcohol (DUI) by:

- Making drivers under the age of 18 convicted of DUI ineligible to obtain a driver license until they are 18;

- Increasing the time span for a previous offender from 5 years to 10 years in establishing a third or greater DUI offense;

- Requiring law enforcement officers to ensure that a blood test be administered within two hours to the driver of any vehicle involved in an accident resulting in death. The test is to be administered in a hospital if the driver is alive. Test results under this section are admissible without consent. No person may refuse to submit to a blood test as required by this amendment.

Litter bugs beware! An amendment revising litter laws:

- Doubles the $250 fine for second and subsequent offenses.

- Deems the driver as the violator if litter is thrown from a vehicle, even if done so by an adult passenger.

- Orders drivers to repair or pay damages caused by unlawfully discarded waste;

- Requires violators to pay the investigative and prosecution fees; and

- Dictates community service by the violator.

In addition, the Department of Environmental Quality is protected from legal action when removing unlawfully discarded waste by this amendment.

The 1995 Legislature also:

- Created a law authorizing local law enforcement to respond in domestic abuse cases. This law says that officers should "take whatever steps are necessary" to protect the victims from harm and to advise them of sources of shelter, medical care and counseling.

If requested by the victim, the officer may transport the victim to the hospital or shelter facility. The officer also may accompany the victim to his or her residence to remove children, food, clothing, medicine and other personal items.

- Appropriated $3 million for DPS to automate criminal histories and create an automated fingerprint identification system.

- Enacted a law providing a statutory lien for the towing and storage of motor vehicles. This law says that a vehicle owner is liable for reasonable towing and storage charges when the vehicle is towed at the request of a law enforcement officer.

The towing company may keep the vehicle until charges are paid. After following the process specified in the law, the towing company may sell any unclaimed vehicle. The towing company must keep any proceeds from the sale for six months. If the owner fails to claim the money, the funds go to the county general fund.

- Amended a law requiring that Highway Patrol officers staff the Driver License Examining Bureau. The commissioner of public safety may appoint a director of driver services who is a qualified elector of Mississippi. This legislation also deletes this statement: Any Highway Patrol officer employed or serving in any position in the Driver License Examining Bureau on July 1, 1989 shall not be required to transfer to another department or division of the DPS as a condition for his or her continued employment with the department.

- Designated a segment of U.S. Hwy. 49 in Collins as the "Billy M. Langham Memorial Highway." Langham was a state trooper killed in the line of duty Dec. 31, 1981.

- Provided that three — but only three — renewals of a commercial driver instruction permit may be granted within a three-year period.

- Authorized the use of nylon straps to secure projecting loads of forestry products being transported by motor vehicles on highways.

FROM THE STATE AUDITOR

SCHOOLS

Q When a local school board finds it necessary or advisable to implement organizational changes within a school district, and such reorganization will not change or alter the geographical boundaries of the school district, is it necessary for the local school board to submit the reorganization plan to the State Board of Education for approval?

A No, where actions of local school boards do nothing to alter the existing geographical features, boundaries or corporate structure of the school districts. (Attorney General's opinion to Burnham dated February 15, 1995)

Q Must elected school board members and superintendents file a statement of economic interest with the state Ethics Commission?

A Yes, by May 1 of each year. (§§25-4-25, 27, 29)

Q Is the school board to certify to the purchasing agent that an item is single-source before he or she is authorized to proceed with the purchase?

A Yes.

Q Are all single-source purchases required to be approved by the school board before the purchase is made?

A Yes.

Q Are school districts required to advertise for sealed bids when purchasing insurance?

A No. (§1-7-13(m)(xiii))

Q May a school district require that school district personnel who use their personal vehicles for travel in the course of their employment provide proof of liability insurance coverage on such vehicles?

A No. (Attorney General's opinion to Sadler dated Feb. 9, 1995)

Q May a school district extend public funds for a promotional effort for the passage of a bond referendum?

A No. A school district is without statutory authority to make such expenditures.

COUNTIES

Q May the statutory April 1 deadline to apply for homestead exemption, be extended when this date falls on a Saturday?

A No. There is no authority for filing after April 1. (Attorney General's opinion to Weathers dated April 18, 1990)

Q Would an ad valorem tax lien against real property be extinguished on the date a public body acquires the property?

A Yes. However the extinguishment would not remove personal liability of taxes from the previous owner. (Attorney General's opinion to Miller dated Feb. 23, 1995)

Q May a county employee take a leave of absence, using personal leave, to run for an elected county office?

A Yes. (Attorney General's opinion to Vickery dated Feb. 8, 1995)

Q Does statutory authority exist for boards of supervisors to rent office space, other than space provided in an office building leased by the counties for general public purposes, for a circuit judge or chancellor or to supplement the office operating allowance for such judges?

A No. ((Attorney General's opinion to Barrett dated Feb. 8, 1995)

Q Does the payment of office rent or contributions for office rent for circuit judges or chancellors by the counties fall within county home rule powers?

A No. (Attorney General's opinion to Barrett dated Feb. 8, 1995)

BREWER'S WORLD

By Jimmie Brewer

Good morning you patriotic, flag-waving, taxpaying, proud Americans.

There are not a whole lot of things in this wonderful world that I hate, other than peas and Hwy. 603. I can't think of anything or anybody that I really despise.

That is, of course, before we agreed to cat-sit for a friend of ours while he spent the summer up north.

"Don't worry, my cat is friendly, litter box trained, and I'm sure won't be any trouble," said Don. (Up until that point I always thought of my friend Don as being an honest dude.)

Sure, I thought, why not; it's only for a couple of months, and our cat, Sugar, might like having a playmate around for awhile.

Amber (who is now called Cujo) arrived at Camp Brewer's with a big-time attitude.

"Be sure to brush her every day," said Don as he pried the cat off his shirt.

"Have a nice trip. No need to worry, she's in good hands," I replied.

Apparently Cujo was not too impressed with her new home or her new caretakers, as she took one look at us, hissed, growled, and darted for the bedroom where she wedged herself underneath the bed.

No problem, I thought, give her a little time to get used to us, and I'll get her out from her hiding place.

First, I tried coaxing her out with some food. That didn't work. She just bared her teeth, hissed some more and lunged at my hand.

I tried sweeping a large broom under the bed, but she just tried to eat it. And still she didn't move. Nothing but hissing and growling.

I had visions of going to sleep and having this feline monster gouge out my eyes.

Cujo the Cat

After two days of having this three-pound ball of black fur terrorize me, I had finally enough.

I was just getting ready to fire up my 450 turbo horsepower leaf blower when she finally emerged just long enough to have some liberty in Mary's favorite plant.

Needless to say, the cat is now out of the bedroom and is going to spend the rest of the summer somewhere in the garage wedged between a fertilizer spreader and a large bag of fire ant killer, trying desperately to avoid Mary.

Praise for do-gooders this week goes out to all you folks who keep fireworks out of the hands of children. Peace.

Lacoste joins Navy

Dillon Lacoste recently enlisted in the United States Navy for guaranteed training at the Navy's Aircrew Rescue Swimmer Program.

Dillon, son of Irving Lacoste and Arlene Lacoste, both of Bay St. Louis, is a 1995 graduate of Bay High School. Enlisting under the Delayed Entry Program, Dillon will report to Recruit Training Center Great Lakes, Ill. in July for active duty, where he will undergo basic training.

Following basic training, Dillon will begin nine weeks of schooling at Pensacola, Fla. in the Aircrew Rescue Swimmer field. Qualified people who enlist in the Navy Aircrew Program will perform inflight maintenance and tactical crew duties in jet, turboprop and helicopter aircraft. They will undergo some of the most demanding physical training offered by the military services.

Petty Officer Ron Orason of the Picayune Recruiting Station, Dillon's recruiter, noted that he may go on to additional schooling or be assigned to any one of the Navy's duty stations around the world.

Wild Arctic

Sea World's Icy Adventure Is Now Open

ORLANDO, FL—Wild Arctic, the most ambitious project undertaken in Sea World of Florida's 21-year history, and also the largest at any of the nine Anheuser-Busch Theme Parks is now open at the Orlando marine life park. Wild Arctic—an adventure so extreme it takes guests where they've never been before—combines a thrilling motion-based flight over the frozen North and up-close, real-life encounters with the majestic creatures that live there.

"This is the first time that an adventure film and flight simulator technology have been used in this way," said William A. Davis, executive vice president and general manager. "Rather than simply serving as entertaining sensations, they transport our guests on yet another exhilarating Sea World adventure: exploring the Arctic and meeting live polar animals."

"Not only do you see the incredible wild beauty of the Arctic during the jet helicopter motion-based experience, but at Base Station Wild Arctic, our research site, you feel the cold, witness the harsh life, participate in research and come nose-to-nose with beluga whales, harbor seals, walruses, even polar bears, all while on vacation in Central Florida. It's an unforgettable experience that we hope will elicit a concern among guests for environmental issues impacting the polar regions."

"With us, our guests will discover a world beyond their wildest imaginations," said Davis.

To start their journey, guests enter a hangar where jet helicopters and hovercraft are based. Massive murals provide a glimpse of the land they will soon explore. While waiting to board their helicopters, guests are briefed on the history of polar exploration, geographical information about the Arctic, and—just in case—cold weather survival techniques.

The important briefing continues as guests learn about the opportunity to observe marine life and help conduct research at the outpost for which they're headed. They're told a powerful polar storm is approaching, but the pilot will attempt to outrun it and get them safely to the remote research camp, Base Station Wild Arctic, before the weather closes in.

KING OF THE ARCTIC—Weighing up to 1,800 pounds, standing over 8 feet tall and having paws measuring up to a foot long and a foot wide, polar bears are one of the most beautiful and dangerous of all Arctic animals. At Sea World of Florida's newest attraction, "Wild Arctic," guests embark on a thrilling, motion-based helicopter flight over the frozen North. Landing at a remote research station, guests practically rub noses with the real live majestic creatures that live there, including polar bears, walruses, beluga whales and harbor seals.

As the chopper flies out of the hangar, the Arctic landscape unfolds. The journey is relaxing—at first—as the sweeping, frozen vista is filled with mountains, glacier peaks and clouds. The craft's diving and banking levels out over the sea, and passengers are treated to a spectacular view of narwhals, walruses and other marine life.

Unsettled briefly by buffeting winds and blinding fog banks, the jet helicopter swoops toward the pack ice for a closer view of polar bears. The radio crackles a warning: The blizzard is bearing down. It's a stern reminder that in the Arctic, nature is in control.

Following the frigid Franklin Strait, the helicopter skims low over the Arctic sea. At Larsen Sound, a huge glacier fills the horizon. Gently touching down on the ancient, frozen floe, the passengers are quietly absorbed with the spellbinding view...until the deep rumbling starts! The helicopter is perched on a calving glacier. Plunging over the precipice, the craft smacks into the sea just as the rotors reach full thrust.

Growing in intensity, the storm batters the helicopter, pitching the passengers in the cabin. The pilot makes a turning dive through clouds and snow and enters a narrow, deep chasm he hopes will offer protection from the Arctic's fury. He's flying only a few feet from the walls, though, and the echo of the helicopter's rotors causes an avalanche! For frightening moments on end, it seems the helicopter will be overtaken...

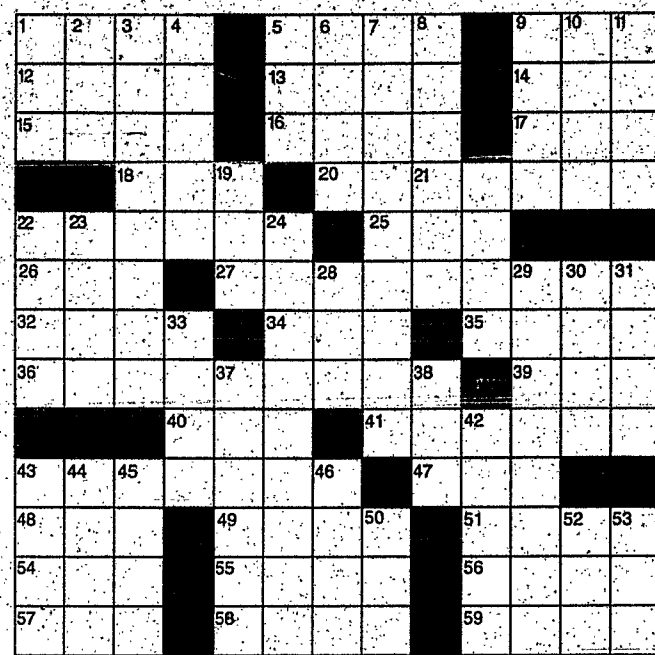

But, at last, the pilot is able to fly free of the chasm and Base Station Wild Arctic appears in the distance. Everyone breathes a sigh of relief as the craft lands safely and the hangar doors close protectively behind them. Though the flight has ended, the adventurous journey continues. Leaving the helicopter cabin, guests emerge into a strange world—seemingly not of this world—filled with animals, rock, ice, water and sky. It's spring in the Arctic, a brief window of time when scientists can work. A chilly passageway and swirling cold air give way to a vast, frozen wonderland with ice walls nearly a half-inch thick. Harbor seals bask on the rocks. In the water a beluga whale surfaces.

Here, the skeleton of an old wooden ship juts from the ice and rocks. Lost while searching for the Northwest Passage, it is said to have been frozen in the ice for 150 years. Contemporary scientists have constructed a research base around the shipwreck and a new search is underway—this one for information about the wild creatures that abound in the region.

Encouraged by a Base Station Wild Arctic "scientist" to seek shelter from the frigid weather, guests explore the hull of the wrecked 19th-century sailing ship which provides a unique vantage point for viewing Arctic sealife. Walruses haul themselves out on ice floes, fish sparkle in the clear, cold water: Polar bears romp among snow-covered rocky outcroppings as the broken, weathered ship creaks and groans.

"According to Brad Andrews, vice president of zoological operations for Sea World, Inc., "Twenty-eight fun and informative stations provide realistic vignettes of life in the Arctic. The most intricate are those featuring animals. Nearly 900,000 gallons of manufactured seawater create an Arctic Ocean. Multi-level ecosystems give elevated views of fascinating species. Rock formations, ice floes, surge pools and boulders recreate life in the frozen North."

Hydrogen production plant dedicated

Praxair Inc., one of the world's leading suppliers of industrial gases, dedicated its new $40 million hydrogen production plant June 17 in McIntosh, Ala.

The new facility produces 26 tons of liquid hydrogen per day. As part of a 15-year contract with the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA), Praxair will ship an average 11 tons of liquid hydrogen per day from McIntosh to Stennis Space Center for use as a propellant for testing space shuttle main engines and components.

"This plant will enable us to better meet the growing needs of our customers in the Southeast," said Praxair president Edgar G. Hotard.

Hotard also added that the NASA selection demonstrates Praxair's commitment to quality, excellence and value creation for Praxair's customers.

In addition to its use as liquid fuel for the space shuttle, hydrogen is used in numerous industrial processes, including the production of chemicals, pharmaceuticals, glass, fiber optics, metals, electronic and food processing. It also is used increasingly as a "clean fuel" in internal combustion engines and fuel-cell powered vehicles to comply with Clean Air Act requirements.

Praxair Inc., headquartered in Danbury, Conn., is the largest industrial gases supplier in North and South America and one of the largest worldwide, with 1994 sales of $2.7 billion.

Give yourself a 'fair' advantage at fairs

If you're watching your intake of fat and calories, you might think that summer fairs and festivals provide a minefield of diet-busting temptations. But you can enjoy these seasonal outings without going overboard, said Anne Reece, a representative of TOPS (Take Off Pounds Sensibly).

"At any fair, you'll see plenty of food loaded with saturated fats and calories," said Reece. "But you needn't eat everything offered at every booth. Arm yourself with a strategy so you can enjoy the fair along with everyone else."

Here are tips from veteran fairgoers who know how to have fun at the fair while sticking to healthy eating habits.

—Eat a sensible meal before leaving home, even if you plan on eating at the fair. This allows you to be particular in your selections, rather than settling for the first thing you see just to satisfy a ravenous hunger.

—Decide if there's one special treat—maybe a bag of cotton candy or an ear of roasted corn—that symbolizes summer-festival fun to you. Work this treat into your meal plan for the day. When the time comes, you'll be able to enjoy it guilt-free.

—Before you order, observe how food is prepared. Some vendors deep-fry everything from hot dogs to zucchini. Do you really want to use up a whole day's allotment of fat and calories on a single side dish?

—Meat fairs also offer wholesome and satisfying selections that don't leave a lingering "aftertaste" of guilt: Fruit cups or whole fruit, sparkling water, low-fat dairy products, baked potatoes with lot-fat toppings, breads and bagels, and so on.

—Drink plenty of water whenever you spend lots of time walking and sitting outdoors. It's easy to misinterpret body signals and think "meal" instead of quenching your thirst.

Helpful hints like these are often traded at TOPS chapter meetings. For information on chapters in your area, call Reece at 875-2783 or toll-free at 1-800-932-8677.

Hancock County Students track endangered animals using NASA technology

Have you ever wondered if sea turtles snuggle down on the sandy bottom of the ocean for an afternoon nap? Or what manatees eat for dinner? Some students from Hancock County will be answering these questions and more next year when they begin the pilot project, "Close Encounters of the Endangered Kind."

Initiated by NASA's John C. Stennis Space Center (SSC) Education Office and implemented through the NASA Teacher Resource Center, "Close Encounters of the Endangered Kind" uses satellite data to track a variety of endangered animals across the United States.

The pilot project will begin during the 1995-96 school year in 20 schools from the Mississippi Gulf Coast/southeastern Louisiana area, as well as in 30 schools in NASA's Tri-State Education Initiative area of Mississippi, Tennessee and Alabama.

NASA recently hosted representatives from the selected local schools, along with a few from the tri-state region, to teach them how to use the satellite data in the classroom.

Hancock County teachers participating in the pilot project are Monique Clifton of Hancock North Elementary School; Sam Parker of both North Bay Elementary School and Waveland Elementary School; Lynne Slade of Pass Christian Middle School; and Laurel Wilson of Bay Catholic Elementary School.

Using information provided by the National Marine Fisheries Service at SSC, teachers and students from the schools will track the locations of manatees in Florida, sea turtles along the East Coast and Canadian geese in Texas. Other data will soon be available on animals such as wolves in the Yellowstone National Park, eagles in the rain forests of South America and wolves off the coast of Hawaii.

"This is another very important way for NASA and other federal agencies to convert scientific research and data for use by teachers and students," said Dr. David Powe, education programs manager for SSC.

"By taking the state-of-the-art technology, NASA and its partners can enhance the teaching and learning opportunities. We anticipate that teachers and students will greatly benefit from this multi-faceted program."

WHAT IS GEOMAP?

Animals that are being tracked by National Marine Fisheries Services are tagged with a transponder. Four times a day a satellite passes over an area and receives data from the transponder on the animal.

National Marine Fisheries Services pulls down this data to be processed through a geographic information system (GIS) database computer program called GeoMap. Developed under contract through NASA's Teacher Resource Center at SSC, GeoMap allows users to display and manipulate line graph maps of the United States and Hawaii, as well as indicate interstates, roads, rivers, lakes and other attributes. GeoMap applications provide a good basic GIS tool that can be used to support mapping, data acquisition and data analysis.

For the pilot project, GeoMap converts the data into information simple enough for teachers and students to use in the classroom. Once a week, teachers can either retrieve the converted data from an electronic bulletin board or have it faxed to them by the TRC.

A "HANDS-ON" LESSON

By tracking the locations of these endangered animals on a weekly basis, students will be developing problem-solving and communication skills while actively participating in a "hands-on" science lesson.

Through this study, student will be learning about the habitat, lifestyle and process of endangerment for these animals. By applying their knowledge of the animals' habits, the students can then predict where the animal will be in the future, as well as why it moved.

Students using the data will be incorporating geography, mathematics, language arts and science into the curriculum while participating in a "real world" problem.

REDUCING THE RATE

"By participating in this project, students can apply their knowledge and problem-solving skills and develop possible solutions for many of the human-induced problems facing endangered animals today," said Charlotte Daves, aerospace education specialist at the NASA Teacher Resource Center at SSC.

Because extinction is not a new phenomenon on Earth, the focus of the project is not to prevent extinction but to reduce the rate of it. Although other projects have involved students in the tracking of endangered animals, "Close Encounters of the Endangered Kind" is unique in that NASA at Stennis is providing the data and training to schools, along with the incorporation of technology and integrated curriculum on which the project is based.

Limit activities on hot days

By Linda Breazeale
MSU Ag Communications

Young and old alike should take seriously the threat of heat stress during Mississippi's hot, humid days. Good judgement can help people avoid the unpleasant feelings related to overheating.

Linda Patterson, extension health education specialist at Mississippi State University, said the risk of heat stress increases when the temperatures and humidity are both high.

"Anytime the temperature is more than 84 degrees and the humidity is more than 90 percent, people need to adjust their outside activity," Patterson said. "Be alert at these levels or any combinations of these factors."

When the heat index is high, people should drink fluids more frequently (water is best) and limit their activity.

"The body adjusts to extreme heat by perspiring to help keep the body at a constant temperature. Perspiration is only effective if it can evaporate and cool the body," Patterson said. "In humid weather, the air is saturated with water and evaporation is limited, so the body has difficulty cooling off."

Heat stress may overcome the body's ability to regulate internal body temperature at a safe level. This is called heat stroke. Some of the signs of heat stroke include nausea, weakness, fainting, pale clammy skin and profuse perspiration. Heat stroke is an emergency situation.

"You don't have to avoid outdoor activity in the heat to prevent heat stress, just decrease the intensity and the duration of the exercise and increase fluids," Patterson said. "There are no physical training benefits to be gained by exercising to exhaustion."

In addition to usual considerations when the heat index is high, young children, pre-teens and people with cardiovascular disease also are more at risk for heat stress.

"Before children reach puberty, their sweat glands are not fully developed to enable them to cope with hot temperatures," Patterson said. "However, it is rare for a child to experience heat stroke, because they usually are willing to stop activity when they start getting too hot."

Adults sometimes use less good judgement. Alcohol, the desire to finish a job or excel in sports are sometimes factors.

"If a person's cardiovascular system is not operating at peak efficiency, he or she is much more prone to heat stress," she said. "When people experience heat stroke, they usually have exerted themselves outdoors in the heat without replacing lost fluids and have ignored how they feel. Any exercise should feel good to be good for you."

tions, property report, photo session and finger printing.

Several of those arrested were released Friday on property bonds as family members and friends appeared at the Criminal Justice Facility with property titles, while several others were released on cash bonds.

Major Gerald Necaise, Criminal Justice chief administrative officer said, "Our department runs a background check on each subject booked to check if there are other warrants outstanding, or felony convictions charges against them."

Officers indicated several of those rounded up were first timers, while others had prior bookings.

Eley listed the following as being arrested and charged for the alleged sale of a controlled substance;

Unemployment rate rises over April

Failure of farm jobs to rebound in May after a wet spring plus a scattering of layoffs across the state pushed Mississippi's jobless rate up eight-tenths of a percentage point over April's 5.1 percent.

At 5.9 percent, the May rate is still comfortably below last year's 6.5 percent. In fact, despite the increase over April, it's the lowest May rate since 1979.

According to Raiford Crews, chief of labor market information for the Mississippi Employment Security Commission, the labor force was smaller than this time last year by 13,300 persons. Residence-based data showed losses both in the number of employed and unemployed.

"These decreases were caused chiefly by decreases in agricultural employment and self-employed and unpaid family workers," Crews said. "Non-agricultural wage and salaried workers have increased by 34,100 since one year ago."

Employers within the state provided 1,057,400 jobs during May — only 400 more jobs than the previous month and 1,300 above one year ago.

"Losses in several industries were too great to be offset by growth in others," Crews said.

Manufacturing lost 1,500 jobs in transportation equipment and 3,000 jobs in apparel and textiles. The losses in transportation equipment are defense-related, and the apparel losses were import-related. Amusements, a category of service-producing industries which includes casinos, lost 9,600 jobs since May 1994.

"On the other hand, construction was extremely strong, standing at 48,700 jobs, an increase of 1,600 from one month ago and 3,900 from last year," Crews said.

Service producing industries produced 748,400 jobs in May, up 100 from April and 1,700 from last year. Annual growth areas were health services and government at all levels.

Roughly 5,500 of the 9,700 new government jobs were in education. Administration of new crime laws has also added government jobs.

Unemployment rates will probably continue to increase in June and July as students enter the summer job market. Nevertheless Crews is optimistic.

"We expect the state's economy to continue to grow since it's stayed strong in face of major restructuring of industries," Crews said.

"The strength of all types of construction indicates increased capacity for growth, as does the adding of major retail and service establishments set to open in the near future in metro areas."

Court

"Nothing has been said," she said. "I would not probably be in favor of it, because I don't feel like we have a problem (with athletes taking drugs)."

Triplett said if an athlete is suspected of using drugs, he or she will be tested, "unless the athlete is caught in the act or admits to doing it."

She added once the athlete tested positive, "he or she would be suspended from play, and we would get that person help and into some rehab."

Triplett pointed out that it has not come to that point, and "hopefully, we will keep that up."

The handbook goes on to say that if an athlete tests positive, "he (she) would be counseled not prosecuted."

According to the handbook, the parents are responsible for counseling, and the district would provide follow-up testing.

Also, the offending student may be suspended from team activities, and following a hearing, may be expelled from school.

"We have not had any problems in the district," Bourgeois said. "A couple of years ago we decided to go ahead and put a policy in place."

"It was put in as a preventive measure."

Triplett said she does not see a policy at Bay High "anytime soon."

Improve

streets and sidewalks, $350,000; new ballfield complex, $400,000; and public works equipment, $200,000.

Several of those same outlays would be duplicated in the subsequent four fiscal years. For instance, drainage improvements would cost an additional $1 million spread out over the next four years. Streets and sidewalk improvements also would receive repeat allocations of $350,000, and public works equipment upgrades would receive $200,000 annually.

The ballfield complex would cost a total of $650,000, consultants estimated.

Road improvements are the biggest ticket items in the five-year proposal: a total of $3 million would be devoted to creating the proposed Keller/Labat street route to Highway 90, with three installments beginning in 1997-98.

For 1998-99, and 1999-2000, the consultants recommend the city spend a total of $3 million for the proposed Drinkwater Road/Joe's Bayou Road loop in the casino area.

Other items in the short-term plan include $1 million for sewer rehabilitation, $1.5 million for new water wells, and $2 million to extend gas service throughout the city.

Over the next 25 years, the consultants suggest the city seek outside funding for a new fire training tower, a juvenile detention center, youth softball fields, a community center with multi-purpose rooms and an auditorium, more public recreation facilities and beachfront improvements.

City officials began gathering information for the comprehensive development plan last summer, holding a series of public hearings concerning each ward in the city.

The development plan that's been proposed covers major transportation and public facility needs, and proposes land uses to be adopted through a new zoning ordinance.

City Council has reviewed the document and plans to send it to the Planning and Zoning Commission for public hearings and a recommendation. After a plan is adopted, officials hope to create a new zoning ordinance, and historic preservation measures.

PRCC sets 'Fall in July' for new students

Pearl River Community College will hold "Fall in July" orientation and registration July 11-13 for new students attending this fall.

"This week gives new students an early start in registering for fall classes at Pearl River," said Dr. Rebecca Askew, director of guidance, recruitment and orientation. "These sessions are only for those who have never enrolled at PRCC."

New students will register according to their resident county. All new students must attend orientation beginning at 8:30 a.m. each day. Orientation and registration will end at approximately 4 p.m.

New students from Hancock, Jefferson Davis and Marion counties register Tuesday, July 1. Forrest and Lamar counties register Wednesday, July 12. Pearl River County will register Thursday, July 13.

PRCC will distribute a fall class schedule throughout the counties. The tabloid schedule contains admissions guidelines, financial aid information and a listing of courses offered in fall.

Cost of new student registration is $15 for students and $5 for parents. The fee covers lunch and is due at the door. Students can pay tuition and other college fees at orientation or in the fall.

Askew encourages parents to attend a special program where they can meet PRCC administrators, faculty and staff.

PRCC students go online with America and the world

Pearl River Community College's Computer Science Department is online with America.

For several months now, PRCC students have been tapping into the CNN Newsroom and the Library of Congress. It's part of the connection with America Online.

Dr. Catherine Cotten, chair of PRCC's Academic Computer Science Department, said America Online gives students an assortment of educational tools that link current news with PRCC's curriculum.

"Tapping into the CNN Newsroom focuses on online forums and real-time online conference," said Cotten.

Connecting with the National Geographic Society allows students to scan interesting news stories, from bizarre travel maladies to what makes dogs bark.

Bay High recognizes Co-op program

The Bay-Waveland Yacht Club was the recent setting for the annual Bay High Co-op program's "Employer Appreciation Banquet." 32 juniors and seniors participating in the local co-op program took their bosses to dinner to say "Thanks."

24 local businesses are involved in the highly successful Bay High Vocational Cooperative Education Program. Businesses participating this year are: Armand's, Coast Electric, Joyce's, National Foods, Burger King, Peoples Bank-Bay St. Louis, Winn Dixie, K Mart, Delchamps, Wal-Mart, Fred's Transmission, Shoney's, Scott Farve Construction, Peoples Bank-Pass Christian, Legal Ease, Moore and Powell, Casino Magic, Nicholas Haas, Attorney, G&M Auto Electric, Universal Storage, Princess Shoppe, Analysis and Technology, Indy's and West Building Materials.

This year, Bay High ranked 1st out of 154 Mississippi School Districts based on vocational placement and retention.

In the Co-op program, students receive one hour of daily job training and classroom instruction, and work a minimum of 15 hours per week in a local business, referred to as a training station. Jane Lamb, vocational coordinator, receives a work grade and job skills analysis from each employer four times a year. Lamb stated, "We have terrific students! It is really satisfying when you see students who have graduated from our Bay High Co-op Program remain in the job they were placed in during co-op, and work their way up to positions in management. You know your placement and training is on target."

If you are a local business leader interested in participating in this program, call Lamb at 467-6023 or 467-6611.

Library hooks anglers with loaner program

In partnership with the American Sportfishing Association (ASA), Mississippi's Hancock County Library recently unveiled the state's first program to hook library visitors on fishing.

The library loaner program, supported by ASA's Sportfishing Promotion Council, puts operational fishing rods, reels and lures into the nation's library systems and encourages would-be anglers to try the sport. It introduces young people and adults to the excitement of recreational angling and provides an opportunity for Mississippi citizens to connect with the natural world.

"Loaner programs like this provide people, especially inner-city children, an opportunity to enjoy America's favorite pastime — fishing," said Joe Kuti, SPC's executive vice president. "Today, many people do not fish because they do not have the necessary equipment. The goal of SPC's library loaner program is to give as many people as possible the opportunity to become life-long anglers."

Last year, Gov. Kirk Frodce became the first American to purchase a state sportsman's license via the interactive 1-800-ASK-FISH system we are implementing across the nation. On behalf of anglers everywhere, we look forward to working with Gov. Fordice, the Department of Wildlife, Fisheries & Parks, the Department of Marine Resources, and the people of Mississippi to secure library loaner programs like this across the state," Kuti said.

ASA is a nonprofit industry association working to ensure healthy and sustainable fisheries resources, increase sportfishing participation, and provide valuable services to make its members more profitable. Its Washington, D.C. staff is involved in education, conservation, promotion and marketing on behalf of the sportfishing industry and more than 50 million American anglers. The loaner program is in place in more than 30 locations in six states.

Bob Beatty of Mississippi's new sportfishing publication, Hook, Line & Thinker, and local retailer Ronny Edmond's Rod & Reel Repair are helping the library refurbish the rods and reels.

Sportfishing in Mississippi provides an economic output of $490 million and is responsible for more than 8,740 Mississippi jobs.

TLC shows horses they are loved

Horses are popular pets in Mississippi. Horse shows and riding "just for fun" are in full swing in Hancock County. There are three good ways to show appreciation and love for a horse. They include vaccination and deworming programs, providing nutritional food and adequate water and exercise.

Foals should be examined within a day of their birth by a veterinarian. Like puppies and kittens, begin foals on a health program early in life.

Vaccinations for horses prevent serious illnesses such as influenza and deadly diseases such as equine encephalomyelitis and tetanus. Flu shots are necessary every three months for show horses and horses who encounter other horses frequently.

Deworm horses every two months. A paste deworming method can be used each time. Use ivermectin at least twice a year — once in the spring and again in the fall.

Keeping a horse free of worms can prevent several problems such as colic and anemia. Consult a veterinarian before, during and after pregnancies. During pregnancy, mares need shots to prevent miscarriages and ensure a healthy foal.

Horses have sensitive digestive systems and therefore need clean, quality food to prevent potentially serious health problems, such as colic.

Although you can't make a horse drink, be sure water is available especially after a hot workout. Allow your horse time to cool down by walking him after the ride.

Softball tournament

The 4th Annual Cuevas Town Softball Tournament is scheduled for July 20-22 in Dubuison.

The fee is $90 for men's team, $85 for co-ed teams. For more information, call 255-8105 and leave a message.

CEMS Students of the Month

Coast Episcopal Middle School students Nicholas Benvenutti, Eleanore Bernadas, Chris Daute-rive and Megan Pigott were selected middle school Pepsi Students of the Month for the second semester of the 1994-95 school year. Members of the faculty and administration choose students based on student performance, effort, sportsmanship, cooperation, self-control and initiative.

Tandy Technology Scholars declares 'Champions of Classroom'

"We created Tandy Technology Scholars to inspire innovation, quality and competitiveness in mathematics, science and computer science," said John V. Roach, chief executive officer and chairman of the board of Tandy Corporation, as he announced Tandy Technology Scholars presentation of awards totaling $350,000. This is the sixth year of the program that is the largest single awards program to honor both students and teachers.

Tandy Technology Scholars recognizes academic excellence, especially in the areas of mathematics, science and computer science. One hundred teachers will receive $2,500 each, and 100 students will receive cash scholarships of $1,000 each.

These recipients of the Tandy Prize were proclaimed "Champions of the Classroom" at the National Science Teachers Association Convention in Philadelphia, Pa.

Almost 72 percent of all secondary schools in the United States are enrolled in this major education initiative funded by Tandy Corporation and administered by Texas Christian University. Roach and Dr. William E. Tucker, chancellor of Texas Christian University, were joined by numerous education leaders, including members of the Tandy Technology Scholars National Advisory Council at the awards presentation. A guest lecture was presented by noted astronomer David Levy.

"As a corporate citizen, we believe it is our responsibility to contribute to a stronger, smarter future for our nation and our children," said Roach. Since 1990 Tandy Technology Scholars has awarded $2,100,000 and 175,500 certificates of academic excellence.

More than one-third of all high schools participated in the 1994-95 program. Almost 37,000 individuals will be recognized this year for their academic achievement by Tandy Technology Scholars at school awards ceremonies across the country.

The program is open to students and teachers in accredited high schools throughout the United States. The Tandy prize recipients were selected by a panel of educators and approved by the National Advisory Council.

Outstanding math/science/computer science teacher school nominees from Bay St. Louis receiving certificates were Janet Cardwell Young, Bay High School; Millie Rutledge of Our Lady Academy, and Wallace B. Fairley of Hancock High School.

Outstanding math/science/computer science student school nominees receiving certificates were Christopher Boston, Bay High School; Bernice Sy, Our Lady Academy; and David Paul Simon, Hancock High School.

Top 2 percent academic nominees receiving certificates were Sheila Marie Kosbab, Bay High School; Julian Allison Ryan, Our Lady Academy; and Brian Joseph Cuevas, Leslie David Morris and Oreathia Christ-haun Smith, all of Hancock High School.

Student awarded scholarship

Katy Marie Muir, a student who will be entering ninth grade next year at Our Lady Academy, has been awarded a $750 scholarship, provided by Gulf South Compression Conference, to attend LSU's Residence Youth Program for Gifted and High Achieving Students, July 9-29.

Muir participated in the Duke University Talent Identification Program as a seventh grader and scored in the upper 95 percent on the ACT.

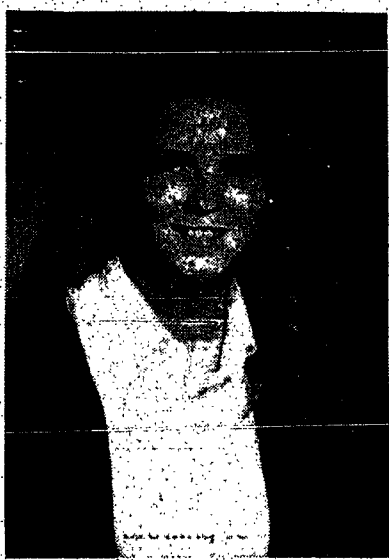

Recently she represented OLA in the National Geographic Bee, sponsored by the National Geographic Society and Chrysler Corporation at Hinds Community College in Jackson.

She also participated in Youth Legislature in Jackson, was a member of the Quiz Bowl Team, has contributed to OLA's literary magazine From Within, was an Alpha Honor Roll student for the first three quarters of the year, and was Pepsi Student of the Month in October.

She also received the President's Award for Educational Excellence in recognition of outstanding academic achievement this past year.

At LSU, Muir will take mini-courses for three weeks in photography, jewelry-making, speech, psychology, computer graphics and acting.

She is the daughter of Kathy Fitzgerald Muir of Bay St. Louis.
